All American Speedway Calling All Veterans of The Armed Forces This Saturday (May 28) With Modified's Twin 50'S

Source RMG Race Media Group

This Saturday May 28th, The All American Speedway is calling all veterans of the armed forces to enjoy some racing action in honor of Memorial Day. All American Speedway will be offering a buy one get one free ticket to anyone with some kind of documentation that they are a veteran (VFW card, discharge papers, old military ID, etc.). Alongside of veteran night the next round of championship point's race will be Bombers and Street Stocks will have 35 lap mains and the Modifieds will have twin 50 lap mains. The NASCAR Late Models will take the night off and return for racing action on June 4th.

A new leader in the points after four races and Jason Romero has now captured the top spot with a mere three points ahead of Matt Scott in second. Romero now has two wins and two wins for the Twin 50's for the 2011 Championship series. Juan Pitta has moved into the third spot with only 29 points behind Scott. Chris Scribner also has moved up in the standing now fourth trailing Pitta by just 12 points. Ron Chunn fifth in the standings and Gary Glenn who missed one race is tied with Dylan Hutchison for sixth. This is Hutchison's rookie year here at All American Speedway and he is well on his game. The NASCAR Late Models will return to racing action on June 4th for another round of 100 lap main.

Minor changes in the Bomber division as they completed their third point's race this past weekend. Chris Paulson is still leading the way in points however he now has company as Erick Ray knocking on his door with a mere nine points behind Paulson. Leading into the weekends race Erick Ray was 16 points from first and he knew he need to grab his win to prevent Paulson from running with first. Team Ray had their first championship points win at the speedway and contest for more this year. Also leading into the race Team Kelly racing was tied with Richard Perez for third, however Team Kelly skipped this race which led them to fall to fifth in the standings. Richard Perez took the third spot and is only two points from fourth Matt Camp.

Chris Lambert still leads the way in the Street Stocks standings however the gap from first to second is now smaller with 11 points by Richard Poppert Jr. Richard Poppert grabbed his first 2011 win which bumped him up from third to second. Byron Gonzalez and Mickey Owens are tied for third in the standings only 13 points from Poppert. Kevin Owens is shy of 10 points behind third but has gained 3 spots since the last race. Look out for some great racing from the Street Stock division since the points are still very close.

Another new point's leader for All American Speedway racing in the Modified division and Dan Jinkerson has captured the top spot from Winters. Scott Winters suffered a terrible DNF this past weekend which hurt him in his points standings leaving him with 17 points behind first. Andy Field coming from 10th had a good run this past weekend to claim third in points just a mere two points away from second. Watch out for some great racing action this weekend from the modified division as they roll in with twin 50 lap mains. The question for this weekend's racing is will Winter's be able to regain his crown and lead the point standings?
